Nova Towers

“I’m extremely satisfied to be at MyNextSuite,” says Tim Burnette, President of Nova Towers LLC. Burnette chose MyNextSuite over three other locations for the Knoxville office of his Atlanta-based company. “In the early days of wireless development, I was part of the group that was responsible for constructing Knoxville’s first cellular tower,” recalls Burnette. “And since then, things have changed very quickly. We’ve expanded nationwide and now construct & manage towers in 35 states, having offices in Atlanta, Knoxville and Dallas.”

“We do most of our work remotely and rely on technology and applications to coordinate all of our business operations at multiple locations,” explains Burnette. “So I was looking for a relatively modest amount of fairly priced office space, but I needed top-of-the-line IT support. I get Level 1 IT support here without having to have my own IT staff. I told them what I needed in terms of phone equipment and computer services, and they gave me great solutions that accommodated my needs to a T.”

Burnette has high praise for his new home. “This is a very well-built building, impeccably maintained and quiet. Being here has been easy.”

But what really sold Burnette on MyNextSuite was the management team. “I really like the professionalism of this team. During my search for an office home, I greatly appreciated MyNextSuite’s no-pressure approach. They were pleasant, professional and prompt—not the least bit pushy and overbearing. That has continued to be the case. This is a positive environment managed by pleasant people that I truly enjoy knowing.”

Nova Towers is one of four exclusive vendors that build and own wireless communication towers across the country for AT&T. Nova Towers engineers and constructs cellular towers to exceed AT&T’s specifications, leases tower space to AT&T, and then also markets the excess tower capacity to other carriers.
